Golf at Suncadia Resort

Overview

Suncadia Resort offers 54-holes of championship golf on three award-winning courses that range from the more difficult to family-friendly options, ensuring there is a course for golfers of all levels during their stay.

Prospector

Developed by the Palmer Course Design Company in 2004, this public, par-72 course features rolling, well-bunkered fairways; fast, medium-sized greens; and numerous water features that present plenty of risk-or-reward challenges for players of all skill levels. Open May 16 through Oct. 31, 2014; closed Wednesdays.

Rope Rider

Built along the site of the historic Roslyn No. 9, No. 10 and Tipple Hill mines, the public Rope Rider course is named in honor of the miners that maneuvered through the steep shafts. The par-72 JacobsenHardy golf course design tests experienced golfers with more than 7,300 yards from the tips, and also accommodates young golfers with youth tees placed at every hole, as well as offering shorter three- and six-hole loops for quick sessions with the family. Near the course is a five-acre Golf Park that includes a large practice putting green and three chipping greens. Open April 11 – Oct. 5; closed Tuesdays.

Tumble

Creek Club

Designed by renowned golf course architect, Tom Doak, this private, members-only par-71 course is situated on a plateau above the Cle Elum River and modeled after the traditional parkland style golf clubs of the Northeast. With stunning views of the river valley and surrounding mountains, Tumble Creek includes manicured bent grass fairways that flow with the mountain topography, green shapes with significant movement and 100 natural edge bunkers that seamlessly blend in to the Northwest landscape. Open April 11 – Nov. 2.

Golf Shop

Both the Prospector and Rope Rider golf and pro shops offer men's, women's and children's golf gear, along with food and beverages for something between rounds.
